

ABSTRACT

A method of soliciting potential employees to an industry includes identifying the potential employee, generating a personalized message for the potential employee on a referral unit, generating a solicitation letter for the potential employee, coupling a media source including general information about career choices by a practicing psychologist to the referral unit, and transmitting the referral unit, the media source, and the solicitation letter to the potential employee.